

Na ròbotan

Lynne Burgess • Shelagh McNicholas

'S e deagh charaidean a th' ann an Seasaidh, Sam agus Seòras.

'S i a' Bhean-phòsta Ros an tidsear a' th' aca.
Aon mhadainn rinn iad uile aodainn ròbotan.
Pheant iad na h-aodainn le dathan brèagha.
Nuair a bha na h-aodainn tioram, thuirt an tidsear gum faodadh iad an cur orra agus ròbotan a chluich.

Bìp, bìp, bìp!

“S e ròbot a th’ annam,”
arsa Seasaidh.

“S e ròbot a th’ annamsa,” arsa Sam.

“S e ròbot a th’ annamsa
cuideachd,” arsa Seòras. ³

“An ith sibh mar ròbot?”
thuirt Seasaidh.

“Ithidh,” arsa Sam
“Ithidh,” arsa Seòras.

“An caidil sibh mar ròbot?”
thuirt Seasaidh.

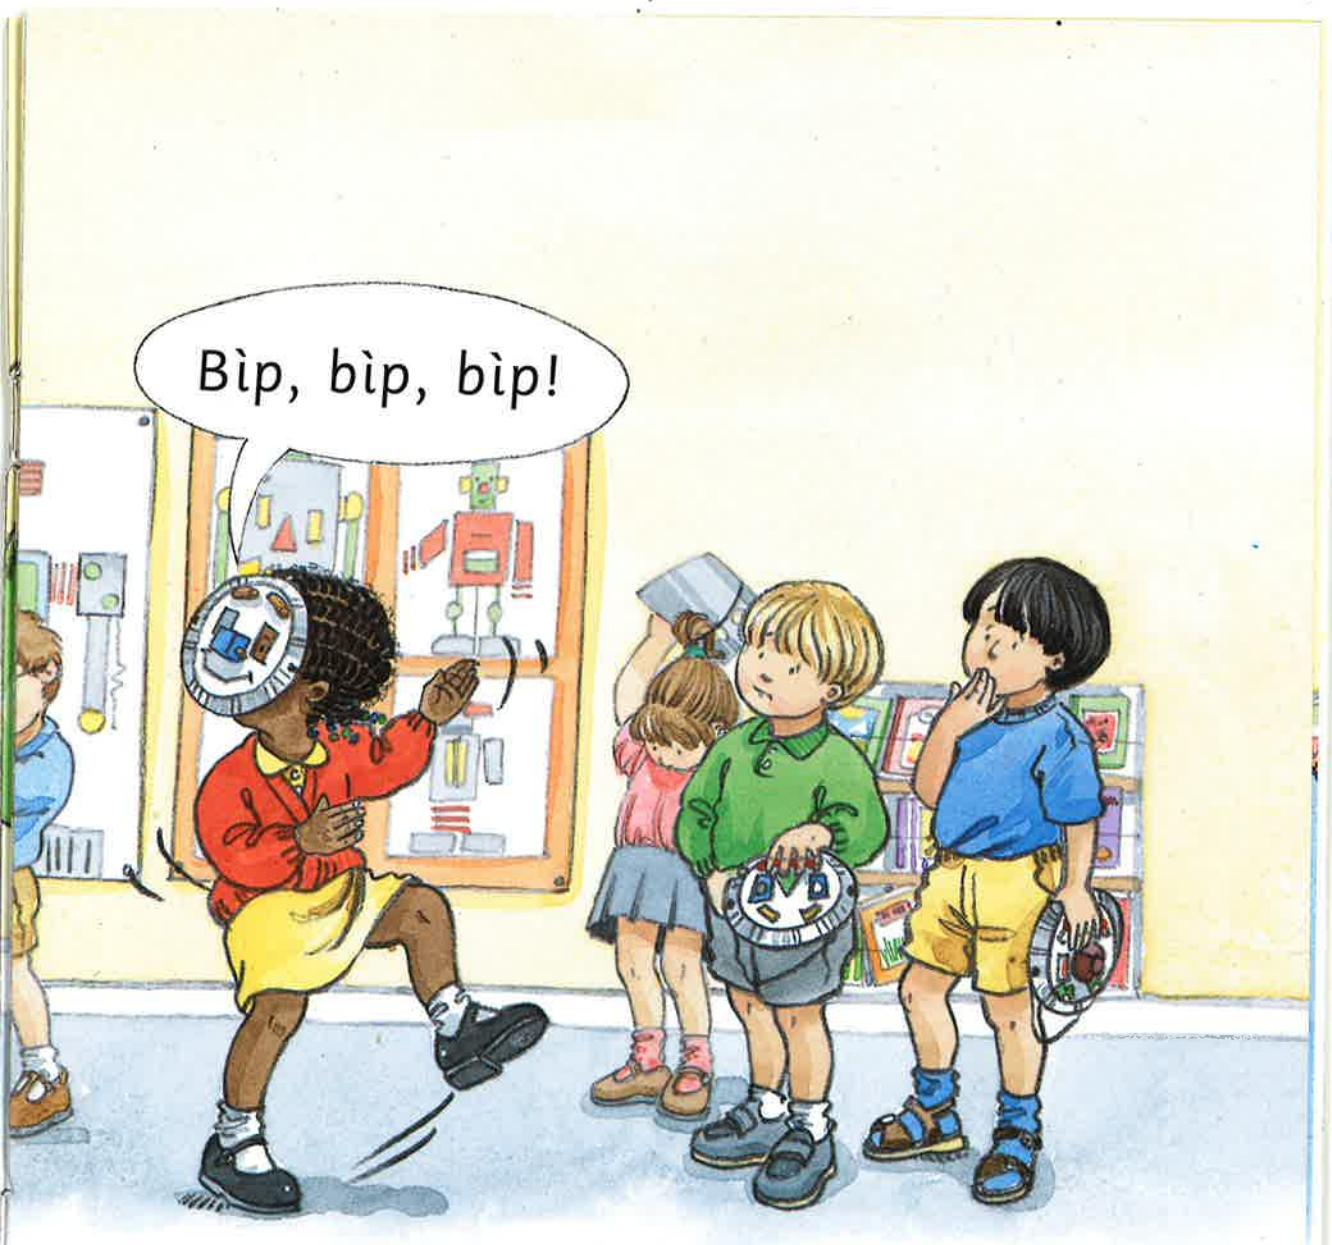

“Caidlidh,” arsa Sam.

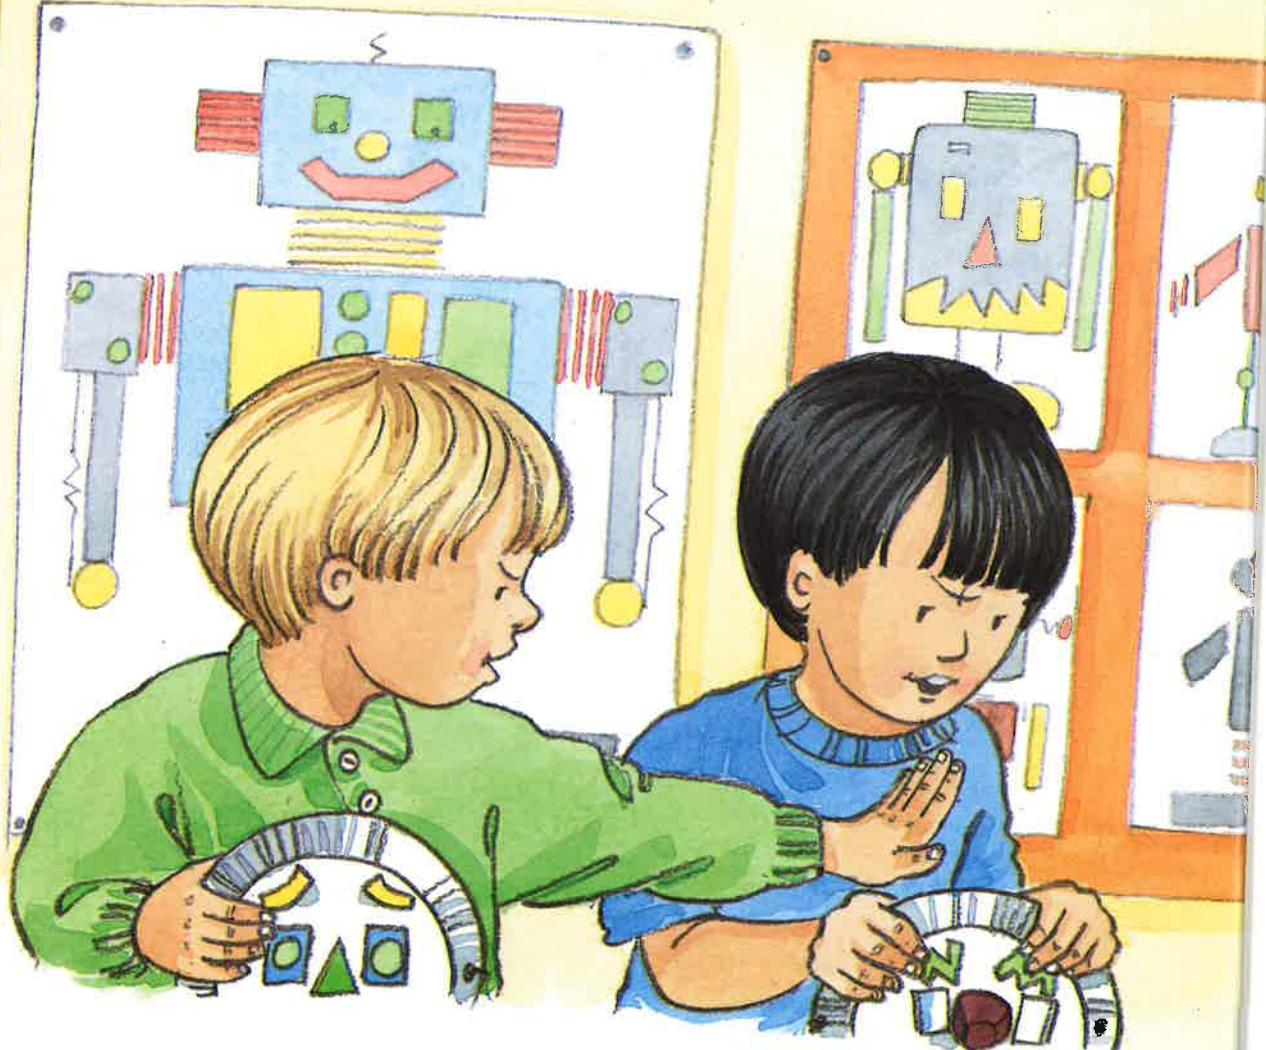

“Caidlidh,” arsa Seòras.

“Stadaibh uile a-nis,”
thuirt an tidsear.

“Chan eil mise ag iarraidh stad,”
arsa Seasaidh.

“Stad!” arsa Sam.

“Stad!” arsa Seòras.

“Stadaidh mise ròbot sam bith,”
thuirt an tidsear.

Is mise Seasaidh,” thuirt Seasaidh.
